

AVE MARIA COMMUNICATIONS

Dear Business Professional,

Catholics are increasingly making their faith an integral part of their daily life.

More and more I see new Catholic professional societies, trade associations, and media outlets being created by lay Catholics. At the same time, lay Catholics are forming educational, family, financial, devotional, evangelistic, activist and arts groups to serve the household of fellow Catholics and their fellow human beings (see Gal 6:10). Catholics, like other “people groups,” are re-forging a distinct identity.

Now, with the explosion of diverse cable channels, specialized web sites, even Ave Maria Catholic Radio and niche publications such as The Catholic Business Pages online directory, business owners, like you, can communicate more directly with Catholics throughout your local community.

RH Publishing, in association with Ave Maria Radio, is excited to announce the launch of the National CatholicBusinessPages.com – Catholics Connected.

CatholicBusinessPages.com will create a contact point between Catholic business owners and the Catholic community in your area.

I would encourage all Catholic business owners and professionals to support this project, which will provide a unique and effective advertising vehicle for your business.

This online directory, long overdue, has finally arrived! Thank you for your leadership in the Catholic community and for joining in this tremendous networking opportunity.

Respectfully,

Al Kresta
